For artist Sharon Gainsburg, stone carving communicates the mystery and magic of life’s journey. Her Las Vegas gallery combines realism and abstraction, with soft, supple forms emerging from rough stone. Inspired in Italy, she has worked surrounded by the marble quarries of Michelangelo. Gainsburg’s works are found nationwide and internationally in many private and corporate collections and have been featured on PBS. She has more than 35 years of teaching experience and offers stone carving classes and creativity coaching, and three- to four-day stone carving workshops are available to Las Vegas visitors. She also teaches intuitive painting workshops to both painters and non-painters. Gainsburg believes that every person is creative, and with the right guidance anyone can learn to express his or her creative voice and have fun at the same time.
